ABOUT ME

My name is Ilyosbek Karimov, and I am currently a student at the Tashkent University of Information Technologies, Samarkand branch, where I am pursuing a degree in Information Security. I have a profound passion for programming, which drives my academic and professional endeavors.
In addition to my university studies, I am also enrolled at School 21 in Samarkand. School 21 is a unique programming school that emphasizes project-based learning and peer-to-peer teaching methods. This innovative approach allows me to tackle real-world projects and collaborate with fellow students, enhancing both my technical skills and problem-solving abilities.
My dual enrollment in these esteemed institutions equips me with a strong foundation in information security and programming. I am committed to continually developing my expertise and contributing to the field through diligent study and practical application.

HOBBIES AND INTERESTS

programming, hacking, learning new information

I have a variety of hobbies that keep me engaged and continually learning.
Programming: I enjoy diving into coding projects, exploring different programming languages, and solving complex problems. Programming is not just a skill for me; it's a passion that drives me to create innovative solutions and continuously improve my abilities.
Hacking: Ethical hacking fascinates me because it combines creativity with technical knowledge to find and fix security vulnerabilities. I enjoy the challenge of thinking like an attacker to protect systems and data, which aligns perfectly with my major in information security.

Learning New Information: I have an insatiable curiosity for knowledge. Whether it's reading the latest tech articles, exploring new fields of study, or engaging in discussions with peers, I am always eager to expand my understanding and stay updated with the latest advancements in technology and cybersecurity.
These hobbies not only enhance my technical skills but also keep me motivated and inspired to pursue excellence in my studies and future career.
